PTA: Parent Teacher Association

PTA stands for the Parent Teacher Association. PTA is a formal association of parents and educators created to support and reform the educational system and get parents interested in their child's academics. The primary goal of any PTA is to promote the well-being of the students.

PTAs give parents and teachers a platform to collaborate on improving the school, teaching, and everything else that affects a child's physical and intellectual development in the early days. Parents and teachers can participate in PTA meetings to discuss and resolve any specific difficulties they may be having.

Need of PTA

- The PTA guides parents in the process, giving them a fresh perspective on the changes needed.
- By enabling two-way conversations between parents and teachers, it enhances home-college relations.
- Also, it is necessary to strengthen parent-child interactions and increase teacher awareness of students' home lives.
- It gives the chance to discuss every student's academic progress.
- The PTA can be a means for parents to suggest changes at their child's school.

Objectives of PTA

- To improve communication between college and home.
- To advance the well-being of youth and children in the family, neighbourhood, and society.
- To improve the kid's quality of life at home.
- To motivate parents to get more active with their kids' study environment ; to lend support at major occasions like college events.

Significance of PTA

- It offers the chance to establish two-way interaction for the child's benefit.
- Offers an excellent chance for teachers and parents to collaborate on the students overall development.
- The PTA is an incredible forum for teachers and parents to exchange knowledge and information regarding student's growth.
- Teachers can learn about a child's weaknesses and talents by observing their parents' views or suggestions.
- Assists in understanding student performance, working to improve it and ensuring the children's best academic and non-academic performance.

Duties of Teachers and Parents

Any parent-teacher association cannot be deemed successful without complete collaboration on both ends, i.e., Parents and Teachers. Both have an important role.

Teachers play the following roles:

- To periodically update the parents on all college activities and occasionally connected events.
- To tell parents the results of their children's exams.
- To talk with parents about their children's routines and assist in identifying their concerns.
- If a student repeatedly misses class, the teacher should contact his or her parents to find out the reason and help and encourage the student to attend class.
- Teachers are responsible for informing parents about trips or tours the college plans to take their kids on.
- Informing parents if children consistently fail to finish any assigned task or schoolwork given by the college.
- The teacher should talk with the pupil about their behaviour at college.

Basic education for children is provided in the home only by the parents before they enter college. Parental involvement is crucial for the student's overall development. Some of the important roles of parents are as follows:

- Parents need to keep a close eye on their kids' activities.
- Parents ought to talk to teachers frequently about their children's home lives.
- Parents should participate in PTA meetings at all times.
- Parents must always encourage their children to engage in the multiple activities offered at college.
- Receiving the kids' exam results timely and speaking with the teacher about them.
- Observing the youngsters' enthusiasm for learning and college.
- Parents should maintain regular contact with the teacher and get complete information about the college and its children.
