Day 1: Note on the Session by Dr. Vitthal G. Gore:

Dr. Vitthal G. Gore, Head, Department of English, Shri Havagiswami College, Udgir, Maharashtra, delivered a highly informative session on “Research and Publication Ethics” during the Faculty Development Programme at Malla Reddy College of Engineering, Hyderabad, on 11th August 2025. His lecture was both thought-provoking and practical, enabling participants to gain a deeper understanding of the ethical dimensions of research and scholarly publication.

The screenshot displays a Webex meeting window titled "Enhancing Research and Publication Capabilities- Day 1". The main content area shows a presentation slide titled "ETHICS WITH RESPECT TO RESEARCH PUBLICATION". The slide lists eleven ethical principles:

1. Follow IPR
2. Generosity
3. Conflict of Interest
4. Informed Consent
5. Integrity
6. Non-discrimination
7. Non-exploitation
8. Privacy and Confidentiality
9. Professional Competence
10. Professional Discipline and
11. Honesty.

Below the list is a diagram titled "Ethical Principles of Research" showing a central circle labeled "Research" surrounded by two concentric circles. The inner circle contains "Integrity", "Honesty", and "Confidentiality". The outer circle contains "Competence", "Non-exploitation", "Justice", "Dignity", "Privacy", "Confidentiality", "Autonomy", "Responsibility", and "Integrity".

Ethics in Publication

At the outset, Dr. Gore clarified the basic concepts of research and publication, defining research as a systematic investigation aimed at contributing to existing knowledge and advancing truth through observation, study, and experimentation. He described publication as the dissemination of research outcomes through journals, books, or other platforms, thereby making knowledge accessible to the larger academic community.

He went on to classify different types of research, such as theoretical, exploratory, descriptive, explanatory, qualitative, quantitative, experimental, and scientific research. Each category was explained with examples, highlighting its purpose and methodology. Participants appreciated this classification as it provided them with clarity on the wide scope of research practices.

Moving to the core theme, Dr. Gore discussed ethics in research, explaining that ethics form the moral principles guiding human conduct and, in the research context, ensure respect for participants, transparency in process, and integrity in outcomes. He elaborated on the goals of ethics in research, including evaluating what and why a subject is being studied, whether the methodology follows proper protocols, and whether the research serves society's best interests while protecting the rights of participants.

A crucial part of the session was devoted to research misconduct. Dr. Gore highlighted the three major types identified by the U.S. National Science Foundation: fabrication (making up data), falsification (manipulating or omitting data), and plagiarism (presenting others' work without acknowledgment). He emphasized the need for intellectual honesty in proposing, performing, and reporting research, stating that honesty in data collection, analysis, and dissemination is the cornerstone of academic credibility.

The session also covered research integrity, which builds confidence in research outcomes by ensuring scientific rigor and professional responsibility. Dr. Gore outlined eleven ethical principles in research—such as duty to society, beneficence, conflict of interest, informed consent, privacy and confidentiality, and honesty—and a corresponding set of principles specific to publication ethics, including respecting intellectual property rights, maintaining integrity, and avoiding exploitation.

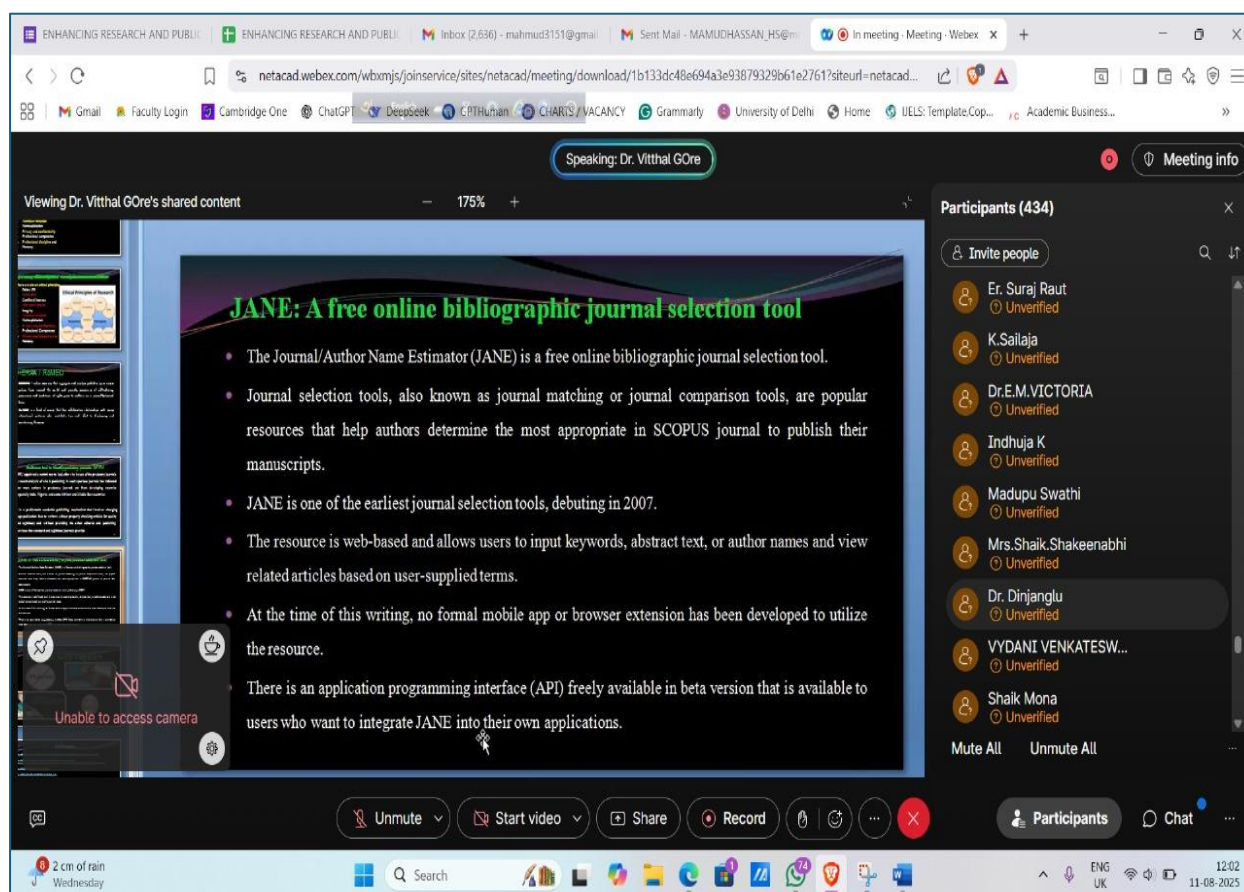

The screenshot displays a Webex meeting window titled "Enhancing Research and Publication Capabilities- Day 1". The main content area shows a presentation slide titled "Research Integrity" with the following text:

- Research Integrity means conducting research in such a way that allows others to have confidence and trust in the methods and the findings of the research.
- It relates both to the scientific integrity of conducted research and to the professional integrity of researchers.

Research Integrity

To provide practical insights, Dr. Gore introduced tools and frameworks such as SHERPA/RoMEO (for understanding open-access publishing policies), the SPPU initiative to identify predatory journals, and JANE (Journal/Author Name Estimator), a free online tool that helps researchers select appropriate journals for their work. His advice on avoiding predatory journals and adhering to ethical publishing practices was particularly useful for early-career researchers.

Journal Selection Tools

The session concluded with a strong message: “Be ethical, avoid plagiarism.” Dr. Gore encouraged participants to cultivate professional discipline, honesty, and intellectual responsibility in all stages of research and publication.

Participants found the session highly enriching and practical. Many expressed their appreciation in the meeting chat box and feedback forms, praising Dr. Gore’s clarity, depth, and ability to simplify complex ethical issues. The Q&A session was very interactive, with several participants raising questions about plagiarism checks, journal selection, and ethical concerns in collaborative research. Dr. Gore patiently clarified these doubts, further enhancing the value of the session.

DAY 2: NOTE ON THE SESSION BY DR. SAJAUDEEN N. CHAPPARBAN

Dr. Sajaudeen N. Chapparban delivered an insightful and highly practical session on “Professional Approach to Research Paper Writing” during the Faculty Development Program, on 12th August 2025. His lecture provided a comprehensive understanding of the process of writing research papers, from conceptualization to publication, with a focus on professional standards and ethical practices. The session was particularly useful for young scholars and faculty members aspiring to enhance their research writing skills and make meaningful contributions to academic discourse.

The screenshot displays a Webex meeting window. The top bar shows the meeting title "Enhancing Research and Publication Capabilities - Day 2". Below the title bar, there is a row of participant thumbnails. The main content area shows a presentation slide titled "Professional approach towards research : Requires". The slide content includes:

The bottom of the screen shows the Windows taskbar with the date and time 10:49 on 12-08-2025.

Research Paper Writing Process

Dr. Sajaudeen began by highlighting the purpose of research paper writing, explaining that research is not just about presenting findings but about contributing to the larger body of knowledge, engaging in scholarly dialogue, and addressing gaps in existing studies. He emphasized that a professionally written paper demonstrates clarity of thought, originality, and a strong academic voice, which are essential for recognition in the academic community.

Research as a scholarly idea and method

~ The highest form of enlightened activity that ensures intellectual gain at the expense of time and luxuries... It is an activity that enables human to form an advanced intellectual culture and to manifest human aspirations to reach the unknown realm of knowledge. (I Quadri)

Research is consistently understood as a systematic, scientific method of enquiry undertaken to generate, refine, or expand knowledge. It typically involves identifying and defining problems, reviewing lit. R. Gap, formulating questions, objectives and hypothesis, systematically collecting data and scientifically analysing it in an organised manner, and drawing and testing conclusions. Research may aim to explain phenomena, develop theories, predict outcomes, or inform practice and policy. The emphasis lies on rigour, logical reasoning, and empirical validation, ensuring that the findings contribute meaningfully to the broader body of knowledge.

He then outlined the structure of a research paper, discussing in detail each of its essential components:

Title and Abstract – concise, clear, and reflective of the study’s scope.

Introduction – setting the context, identifying the problem, and establishing the significance of the study.

Review of Literature – situating the research within existing scholarship and identifying knowledge gaps.

Methodology – explaining the research design, tools, and techniques used to ensure replicability and reliability.

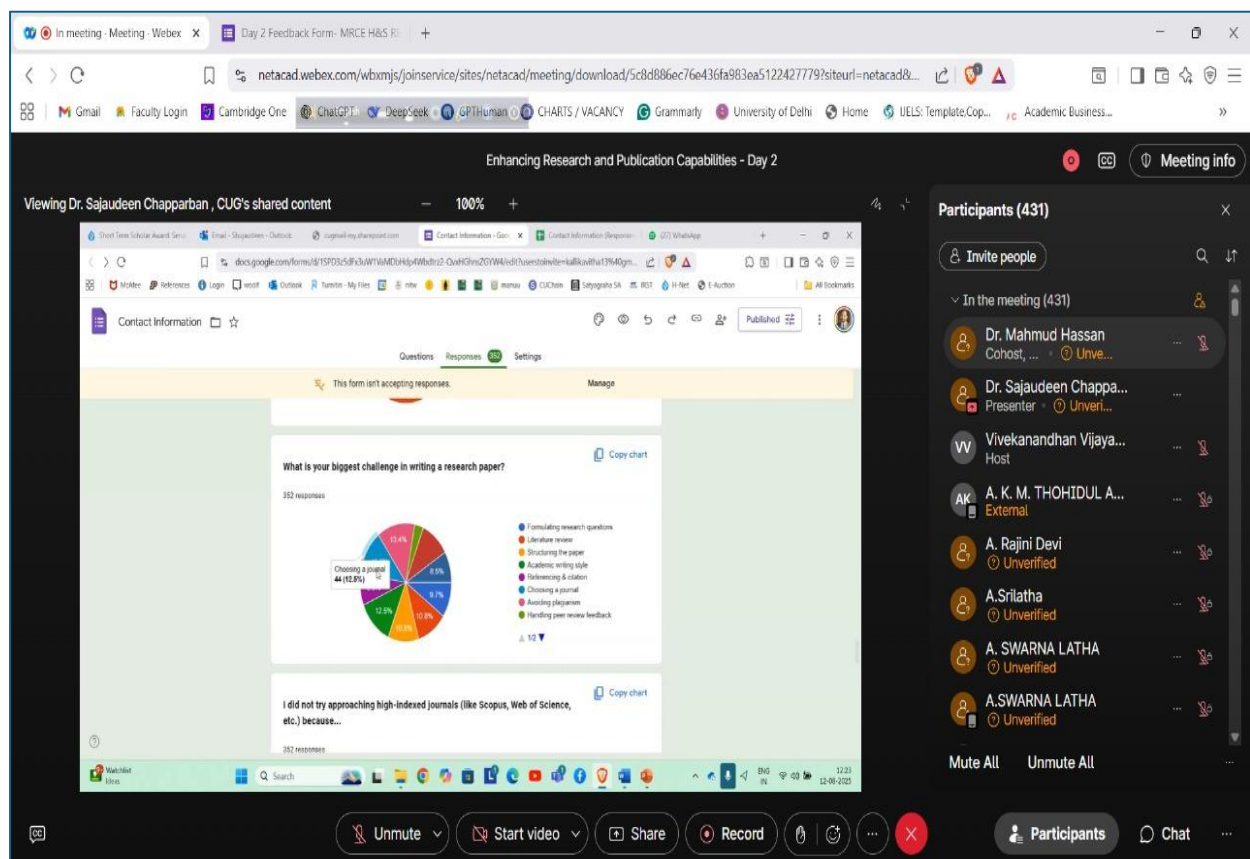

Analysis and Findings – presenting data clearly with logical interpretations.

Discussion – linking findings to broader academic debates and implications.

Conclusion – summarizing the study and suggesting future directions.

He stressed that each section must be written with precision and purpose, avoiding redundancy or ambiguity.

A significant portion of the lecture focused on methods of writing research papers, where Dr. Sajaudeen shared strategies to develop a clear argument, maintain coherence, and use evidence effectively. He highlighted the importance of drafting and revising, advising researchers to see writing as a process of refinement rather than a one-time activity. He also provided practical tips to overcome common challenges such as writer's block, poor organization, and lack of focus.

Challenges in Research Paper Writing

Dr. Sajaudeen also introduced participants to different reference styles followed globally, such as APA, MLA, Chicago, and IEEE, explaining when and why each is used. He emphasized that correct citation not only avoids plagiarism but also enhances the credibility of the paper by acknowledging scholarly contributions.

Equally valuable were his suggestions on the dos and don'ts of research writing. Among the dos, he stressed clarity, accuracy, logical flow, originality, and adherence to ethical standards. The don'ts included plagiarism, over-reliance on secondary sources, vague generalizations, improper structuring, and neglecting journal-specific guidelines. These practical insights provided participants with a roadmap to avoid common mistakes and produce high-quality research.

The session was well-received by the participants, who actively engaged throughout. Many expressed their appreciation in the meeting chat box and feedback forms, noting how the lecture clarified their doubts and offered actionable guidance. The Q&A session was lively and interactive, with participants raising questions on citation practices, structuring arguments, and handling reviewers' comments. Dr. Sajaudeen responded patiently and thoroughly, ensuring participants left with a clearer understanding of research writing practices.

In conclusion, Dr. Sajaudeen's lecture proved to be a highly enriching experience. By combining theoretical clarity with practical strategies, he empowered participants to approach research writing with confidence, professionalism, and academic integrity. The session not only enhanced participants' knowledge but also motivated them to refine their research practices and strive towards impactful scholarly contributions.

DAY 3: NOTE ON THE SESSION BY DR. GIRISH D. PAWAR

Dr. Girish D. Pawar, Assistant Professor in the Department of English, University of Hyderabad, delivered an insightful and engaging lecture on "Research and Artificial Intelligence: Enhancing Research and Publication Capabilities" during the National Level FDP held at MRCE, Hyderabad, on 13th August 2025. His talk highlighted the transformative role of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in shaping the future of academic research and publication practices, providing both theoretical perspectives and practical insights for participants.

The session began with an overview of how AI greatly supports literature review writing by simplifying research discovery, summarisation, organisation, and drafting. Tools like Elicit, Semantic Scholar, and Scite help identify and analyze relevant studies, while Scholarcy and ChatGPT summarize and synthesize findings. Zotero, EndNote, and Mendeley manage citations and references efficiently. AI can cluster works thematically, highlight research gaps, and assist in drafting coherent sections. However, researchers must verify references, ensure originality, and add critical analysis, since AI cannot replace human interpretation. Used wisely, AI becomes a powerful assistant, saving time, enhancing clarity, and strengthening the quality of literature reviews in academic research.

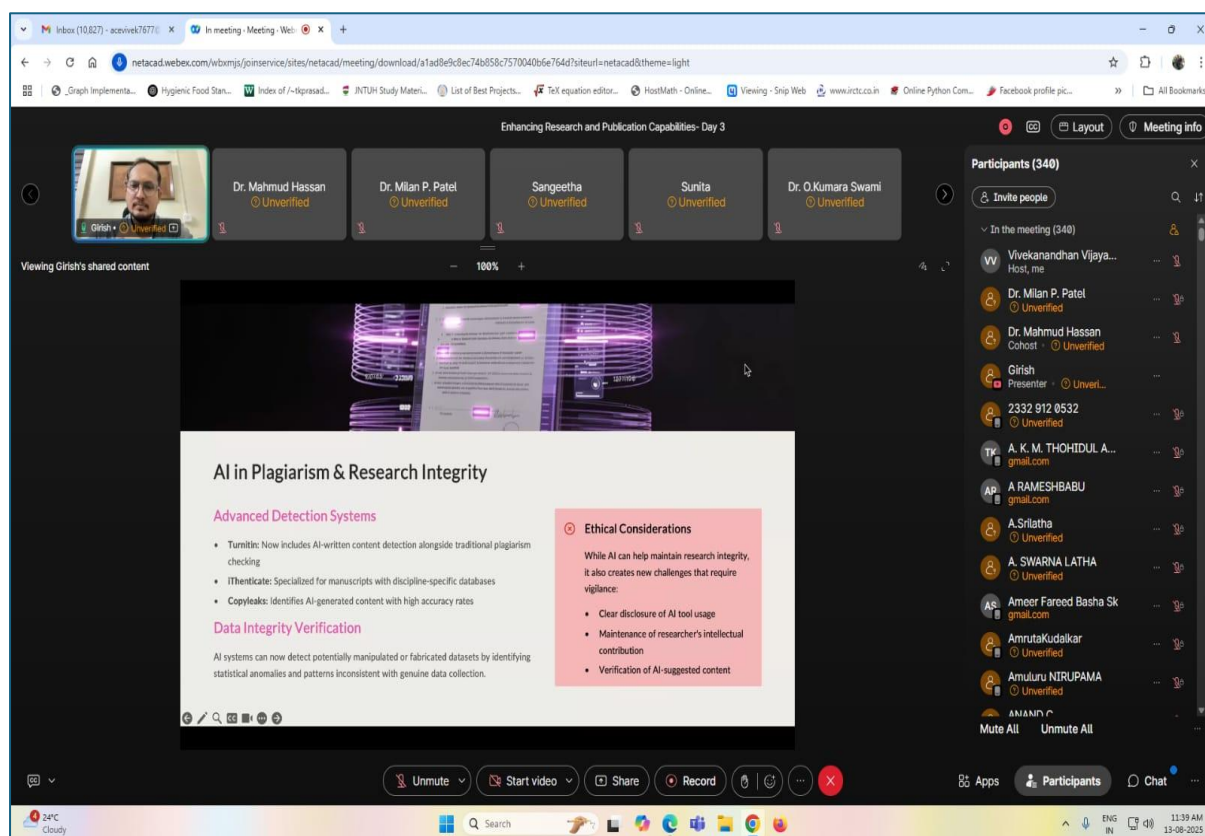

AI and Literature Review Writing

Dr. Pawar then discussed the current challenges in the research landscape, including the massive growth in published papers, shorter publication cycles, and the increasing need for interdisciplinary collaboration. He explained how AI-driven tools are helping researchers navigate overwhelming volumes of information while maintaining academic integrity and quality through avoiding plagiarism.

A key highlight of the session was the systematic presentation of AI applications across different stages of the research lifecycle. Dr. Pawar elaborated on AI-enabled tools for data collection, analysis, and visualization, ranging from transcription services like Otter.ai to advanced platforms like RapidMiner, NVivo, and Tableau. Particularly, the discussion on AI tools for writing and editing, such as Grammarly, Quillbot, and Paperpal, generated great interest as they directly addressed challenges faced by researchers in preparing manuscripts for publication.

The session also touched upon ethical considerations in AI-assisted research, such as maintaining academic integrity, acknowledging AI contributions, and ensuring data privacy.

and fairness. Dr. Pawar presented real-world case studies from STEM, humanities, and social sciences to illustrate how AI has already begun transforming diverse fields of inquiry. His forward-looking insights on trends like AI-assisted peer review, automated systematic reviews, and integrated research infrastructures provided a glimpse into the evolving future of research.

The participants thoroughly enjoyed and benefited from this session. Many of them expressed their appreciation through the meeting chat box and the feedback form, praising the clarity, depth, and practical relevance of Dr. Pawar's presentation. Several attendees also showed keen interest in learning more about specific AI-based research tools introduced by the resource person, indicating the session's impact in sparking curiosity and motivation for further exploration.

What is Research?

- RESEARCH is a systematic investigation for pertinent information on a specific topic.
- a careful inquiry specifically through search for facts in any branch of knowledge.
- an academic contribution to the existing stock of knowledge making for its advancement.
- pursuit of truth with the help of study, observation, experiment and conclusion.

WHAT IS PUBLICATION?

- PUBLICATION is the preparation and issuing of a book, journal, or piece of writing for public sale.
- PUBLICATION is the action of making something generally known in the form of an article, pamphlet, book, journal, etc.

Paper Publication Process

Types of Research

1. Theoretical Research
2. Exploratory Research
3. Descriptive Research
4. Explanatory Research
5. Qualitative Research
6. Quantitative Research
7. Experimental Research
8. Scientific Research

- Theoretical Research usually explains existing experimental results and to predict new results, while an experiment is usually expected to check the validity of existing theories and to gather data for modifying them.
- Exploratory Research is an approach that explores research questions which have not previously been studied in depth. It is often used when the issue taken up for study is new, or the data collection process is challenging in some way.
- Descriptive Research aims to accurately and systematically describe a population, situation or phenomenon.
- Explanatory Research is a research method that explores why something occurs when limited information is available.
- Qualitative Research is defined as a research method that focuses on obtaining data through open-ended and conversational communication.
- Quantitative Research deals in numbers, logic, and an objective stance. It focuses on numeric and unchanging data and detailed, convergent reasoning rather than divergent reasoning.
- Experimental Research is a study conducted with a scientific approach using two sets of variables.
- Scientific Research conducted for the purpose of contributing towards science by the systematic collection, interpretation and evaluation of data in a planned manner.

Ethics

The branch of knowledge that deals with moral principles.

Moral principles that govern a person's behaviour or his/her conduct of an activity.

Ethics or moral principles is a branch of philosophy that "involves systematizing, defending, and recommending concepts of right and wrong behaviour".

Ethics refer to rules provided by an external source, e.g., codes of conduct in workplaces or principles in religions.

Ethics is the branch of philosophy that addresses questions about justice and morality.

The field of ethics, along with aesthetics, concerns matters of value.

Research Ethics

- Research ethics involve the application of fundamental ethical principles to research activities
- include the design and implementation of research, respect towards society and others
- the use of resources and research outputs, scientific misconduct and the regulation of research.
- Research ethics govern the standards of conduct for researchers.
- to adhere to ethical principles in order to protect the dignity, rights and welfare of research participants.

- ✓ Ethics are personal codes of conduct based on respect for one's self, others and surroundings
- ✓ Ethics are governed by the principles or assumptions underpinning the way individuals or organizations ought to conduct themselves.
- ✓ Ethical considerations in research are a set of principles that guide your research designs and practices.
- ✓ Research ethics involves the application of fundamental ethical principles to research activities which include the design and implementation of research, respect towards society and others, the use of resources and research outputs, scientific misconduct and the regulation of research.

Goal of Ethics in Research

- Falsification means manipulating research materials, equipment, or processes, or changing or omitting data or results such as the research is not accurately represented in the research record.
- Plagiarism is presenting someone else's work or ideas as your own, with or without their consent, by incorporating it into your work without full acknowledgement.

Plagiarism may be intentional or unintentional but it is unethical.

Intellectual Honesty

- Our Moral duty to be honest – HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY
- Intellectual honesty in proposing, performing, and reporting research which refer to honesty with respect to the meaning of one's research.
- It is expected that researchers present proposals and data honestly and communicate their best understanding of the work in written and verbal forms.
- Intellectual honesty is honesty in the acquisition, analysis, and transmission of ideas.
- A person is being intellectually honest when he or she knows the truth, states that truth.

Research Integrity

- Research Integrity means conducting research in such a way that allows others to have confidence and trust in the methods and the findings of the research.
- It relates both to the scientific integrity of conducted research and to the professional integrity of researchers.

Ethics with respect to Research

SHERPA / RoMEO

- SHERPA - online resources that aggregate and analyse publisher open access policies from around the world and provides summaries of self-archiving permissions and conditions of rights given to authors on a journal-by-journal basis.
- RoMEO is a kind of service that has collaborative relationships with many international partners.

Software tool to Identify predatory journals: SPPU

- SPPU appointed a committee to look after the issues of the predatory journals. A recent analysis of who is publishing in such spurious Journals has indicated that most authors in predatory journals are from developing countries, especially India, Nigeria, and some African and Middle East countries.
- It is a problematic academic publishing mechanism that involves charging huge publication

JANE: A free online bibliographic journal selection tool

- The Journal/Author Name Estimator (JANE) is a free online bibliographic journal selection tool.
- Journal selection tools, also known as journal matching or journal comparison tools, are popular resources that help authors determine the most appropriate in SCOPUS journal to publish their manuscripts.
- JANE is one of the earliest journal selection tools, debuting in 2007.
- The resource is web-based and allows users to input keywords, abstract text, or author names and view related articles based on user-supplied terms.
- At the time of this writing, no formal mobile app or browser extension has been developed to utilize the resource.
- There is an application programming interface (API) freely available in beta version that is available to users who want to integrate JANE into their own applications.
